

ISSUE IN NICARAGUA ADDS STRAIN TO U.S. AMITY WITH MEXICO

Attempt Here to Prevent
Merging of Problems
Held as Failing.

CALLES SEEN AVERSE TO ANY COOPERATION

Lifting of Embargo on Arms
Discussed as Retaliatory
Blow to Regime.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Although President Coolidge and Secretary of State Kellogg are striving to prevent the Mexican problem from becoming merged in America's dealings with Nicaragua, there was further indication yesterday that the efforts of the United States government in this respect may prove fruitless.

Advice reaching Latin American diplomatic circles, as well as the news from Mexico City, show that President Calles of Mexico is not prepared to cooperate with the United States. Instead, President Calles appears anxious to make another issue out of the Nicaraguan situation and there is grave fear here that such a policy would put a further and unwelcome strain on the present unsatisfactory relations between the United States and Mexico.

But until President Calles has been given his chance to hear America's warning with respect to Nicaragua and reply to America's last note on the controversy of Mexican laws, as they affect Americans, officials here are disposed to refrain from involving Mexico in the Nicaraguan situation.

Simply Aiding Nicaraguan Peace. President Coolidge understands that Adolfo Diaz has asked the good offices of the United States in maintaining peace and that Mr. Kellogg is going to cooperate with him. But that is all, the White House spokesman stated yesterday, making it clear that for the moment the American policy does not go beyond readiness to assist the Nicaraguan peace program.

Thus the only immediate danger of seriously disturbed relations with Mexico lies in the possibility that Calles may sanction a continuance of armed interference by Mexico in Nicaraguan affairs. Such a policy might bring on a clash at any moment, because the United States warships in Nicaraguan waters would probably not remain idle if further shipments of arms or munitions seek a landing at Nicaraguan ports.

Meanwhile there is the encouraging possibility that President Calles may yield to the American demand for a peace program in Nicaragua free from "outside disturbances." Senator Don Manuel C. Tellez, the Mexican Ambassador, was at the State Department yesterday, but did not see Mr. Kellogg. Senator Tellez has exerted his influence on behalf of harmony and peace on previous occasions when the relations between the United States and Mexico were disturbed, and it may be that he will again succeed in averting the threatened crisis. But it is conceded that the present difficulty between the two governments is the most difficult of solution which has yet confronted the resourceful Mexican diplomat.

Several Trumps Yet to Play.

It appears, too, that America has several trump cards yet to play if necessity requires. If President Calles will not be disposed to curb shipments of Mexican arms and munitions to Nicaragua he may find it difficult to persuade the United States government to continue its present policy of curbing shipments of American arms and munitions to Mexico.

It is not expected that the President would willingly resort to a lifting of the embargo on arms to Mexico as a retaliatory measure. But the curious situation is presented where Calles' efforts to maintain stability and avert bloodshed in his own country are being effectively helped by the American arms embargo, while at the same time Adolfo Diaz's efforts to gain stability in Nicaragua are being hindered by the refusal of Calles to keep Mexican arms out of that country.

And it is freely stated by diplomats here that the raising of the arms embargo by President Coolidge might mean the end of the Calles regime within a few weeks. The actual number of rifles and machine guns shipped from American soil to revolutionists would probably not be decisive in so short a period, it is stated, but the fact that the embargo had been lifted would be a signal that the United States had withdrawn its support from the present government of Mexico.

Because of present unsettled conditions in Mexico, the withdrawal of American good will might be serious.

CHATEAU LE PARADIS IS BURNED TO GROUND

Closed Summer Resort at Ammendale Discovered in Flames by Motorists.

LOSS IS PUT AT $200,000

Chateau Le Paradis, the popular resort operated by Meyer Davis at Ammendale, Md., was destroyed by fire last night. Several hundred persons who gathered were endangered when one of the walls crashed in.

The building, situated far back from the Washington-Baltimore pike amid a foliage of towering, shading trees, was discovered with its entire roof in flames by passing motorists who spread the alarm.

Volunteer fire apparatus responded from Hyattsville, Riverdale, Cottage City and other nearby Maryland communities, but by the time they arrived on the scene the whole building seemed to be lost.

The resort was opened summer before last by the millionaire club and orchestra operator to serve as an outlying adjunct of the Cafe Le Paradis. It was a spacious frame building of a pretentious Colonial type.

It was elaborately furnished, and in the summer was the mecca for Washingtonians and parties from Baltimore seeking gaiety of the night life. It was closed for the winter on Labor day, and it is understood that not even a caretaker was in the building last night.

Mr. Davis was reported to be in New York. According to Robert Kehl, manager of Le Paradis, who was notified by The Post of the fire, the building and furnishings were valued at $200,000. None of the furnishings had been removed, he said.

The volunteer fire apparatus sought for a while to fight the flames with water drawn from a stream nearby but finally gave this up as ineffective and let the building, then nearly burned to the ground, burn itself out. Only the chimneys were left standing.

Safety of the property, it was reported, had been left in the hands of a private detective agency, although a caretaker was retained on the property when it closed last winter. There were two explosions during the fire which sent missiles flying over the onlookers.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—Storm-lashed waters of Lakes Michigan and Superior tonight held in their grip five coal-carrying freighters and the steamer C. Russell Hubbard, caught in the gale that swept down from Canada Wednesday.

The freighters were bound for Milwaukee, and officials here said no apprehension was felt, as it was believed they took shelter around the Beaver islands or the Manitowish. Three other freighters are due here before midnight. The freighters overdue are the Monroe C. Smith, David Z. Norton, Hill, William H. Fitzgerald and Sam Mitchell.

No report had come of the whereabouts of the C. Russell Hubbard, a 9,000-ton ore boat, carrying a crew of about 30 men, which was due at Ashland, Wis., docks at 6 p. m. Thursday. The ship carries no wireless, and hope was held that the ship was safe in some port but unable to communicate with Ashland. The freighter left Sault Ste. Marie Wednesday noon.

JUSTICE MCKENNA IS CRITICALLY ILL AT HIS HOME HERE

Former Supreme Court
Jurist Was Given Last
Rites a Week Ago.

4 CHILDREN AT BED AS HE GROWS FEEBLE

Was Appointed by McKinley
After Serving as U. S.
Attorney General.

Former Associate Justice Joseph McKenna, who retired from the United States Supreme Court about a year ago, is "very seriously ill" at his apartment in the Connecticut, 1150 Connecticut avenue northwest, it was learned last night.

Mr. McKenna, who is 83 years old, received the last rites of the Catholic Church a week ago, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Edward L. Buckley, pastor of St. Matthew's church. The four children of the distinguished jurist are gathered here, three of them having been summoned from other cities. Mrs. Edward Alsop came all the way from Paris. The other daughters are Mrs. Pitts Duffield, of New York, and Mrs. Davenport Brown, of Boston. Frank McKenna, the only son, lives here.

The strength of Mr. McKenna began to fail about two months ago, according to Mrs. Duffield, who said last night he was very feeble. Dr. Sterling Ruffin is in attendance.

Was Attorney General.

Like the man who took his place on the Supreme Court bench, Harlan Stone, Mr. McKenna was appointed to the nation's highest tribunal after serving as Attorney General of the United States. He was appointed to the latter office by President McKinley, and it was McKinley who, ten months later, appointed him to the seat in the Supreme Court that had been occupied by Justice Field. This was in December, 1897. Joseph McKenna was born August 10, 1843, in Philadelphia, the son of John and Mary McKenna, the former a native of Ireland and the latter an Englishwoman. As a youth, he attended St. Joseph's college, in Philadelphia, and there received preparatory education.

In 1865 the family moved to Benicla, Calif., where young Joseph began St. Augustine college and began the study of law. Later he had the remarkable experience of being graduated, being admitted to the California bar and of being elected district attorney of Solano county, Calif., all within the year 1865.

Legislator in 1875.

In 1875 Mr. McKenna was elected a member of the California legislature, in which body he made a notable speech that attracted national attention. (CONTINUED ON PAGE 8, COLUMN 4.)

Verdict of 20 Cents For 2 Deaths Is Limit

Los Angeles, Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—The price of a can of salmon is the limit of compensation which can be obtained by M. N. Putnam, a dentist, for the death of his wife and 15-year old son from food poisoning, the superior court has ruled.

Ascribing their poisoning direct to the canned salmon, Putnam asked damages of $50,000 for the death of each. The California law provides that the measure of damages resulting from spoiled food is the amount paid for the food, in this case 20 cents.

HALL CASE DEFENSE BEGUN; DEFENDANTS WILL GO ON STAND

Henry Stevens Will Be
First of Witnesses
This Morning.

ALIBI FOR ALL THREE WILL BE PRESENTED

Effort to Bar Out Visiting
Card Fails; Razor Exhibit
Withdrawn by State.

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—Announcement that the three defendants will testify and that their attorneys expect to establish an alibi for each, was made in the opening of the case for the defense in the Hall-Mills trial here today. The announcement came on the heels of the closing of the State's case, at the afternoon session of the court, after seven witnesses during the day had increased the total for the thirteen court days to 84.

Henry Stevens, who is charged with the murder of Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, will be the first witness tomorrow. He will say that he was at his home at Lavallette, N. J., when his brother-in-law, the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Mills were slain on the night of September 14, 1922.

The defense expectations were outlined by Clarence E. Case this afternoon in a 45-minute presentation to the jury. Illustrating his address by a large map of De Russes' lane and vicinity, the defense lawyer used a long school pointer to indicate the crumpled tree, under which the bodies were found, the cedar tree, where Mrs. Jane Gibson, the State's star witness, says she tied her mule, Phillips' lane and other names made familiar by the trial.

Jury's Interest Revives.

Mr. Case, with spectacles resting on the end of his nose, looked like a well-tailored schoolmaster as he pointed to the map.

As soon as the State rested the defense produced its map. It was pinned to the wall near the jury, and Justice Charles W. Parker, presiding, took a seat among counsel to get an unobstructed view of the map representation of the now famed De Russes' lane. The jury also showed renewed interest. "We will show you what is known as an 'alibi' for each of the defendants," declared Case in his opening address. "We will prove—and we believe to your satisfaction—that each defendant was elsewhere at the time this crime was committed."

Henry Stevens was at his home at Lavallette, he said, and Willie Stevens and Mrs. Hall were at their New Brunswick home until an early hour in the morning, when Mrs. Hall, alarmed at the continued and unexplained absence of her husband, awakened her brother and accompanied by him, visited the church to see if he could have fallen asleep there.

Her husband had told Mrs. Hall, the lawyer pointed out, on leaving home, that he was going to "see about Mrs. Mills' hospital bill," and when the church was found dark Mrs. Hall and (CONTINUED ON PAGE 15, COLUMN 2.)

NEW STEEL PROCESS CLAIMED AT BERLIN

Harder and More Elastic Product Reported at Cheaper Cost.

Berlin, Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—Discovery is claimed of a new chemical process whereby iron may be converted into steel considerably harder and at the same time more elastic than the finest product made by existing methods.

The discovery, which was made in the laboratories of the German dye trust, is said to have resulted in the production of steel of the finest quality, with none of the impurities and defects now unavoidable in the smelting process.

It is asserted that the steel thus produced is cheaper to manufacture, and it is hoped that the new invention will place the German industry in a dominant position in the international market.

Sesqui to Stay Open Until First of Year

Philadelphia, Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—Directors of the Sesqui-centennial exposition tonight decided to extend the exposition for one month, or until January 1, 1927. The fair was to have closed December 1.

The action was taken during a discussion of a proposed financial plan for reopening the fair next year, and the extension was agreed on to give the directors opportunity further to study the proposal.

Directors pointed out that financial aid from the Federal government would have to be forthcoming to reopen in 1927. In a statement yesterday Mayor Kendrick said the deficit at the end of November would be more than $5,000,000. (Copyright, 1926, by the N. Y. Tribune, Inc.)

PRESIDENT REJECTS ALL TAX REFUND VARIATIONS

Auto Levy Cut and Proposals to Spend Surplus Stir Coolidge's Opposition.

FIRM FOR CREDIT PLAN

By NORMAN W. BAXTER.

President Coolidge, it was disclosed at the White House yesterday, looks with no favor upon variations of the tax credit plan which have been evolved after some confusion as to the administration's method of returning the surplus to the taxpayers, nor will he give his support to any of the proposals for distributing the accumulated funds in the Treasury in some other fashion.

The presidential views were given partly in reply to the suggestion of Senator Furnifold M. Simmons, of North Carolina, that a reduction be made in the automobile excise tax, and also in answer to a number of congressional callers who have evidently in the past few days sought to enlist the aid of the chief executive for various projects that would involve the administration in new and additional expenditures of public funds.

It was apparent after the exposition of the chief executive's views that as far as the White House is concerned the only practical course to be followed by the coming short session of Congress is to authorize the 15 per cent credit on the income tax payments of March and June. The determination of the chief executive on this point and the divergence of opinion in the Senate and House, therefore, indicate more than ever, it is believed, that the problem of tax relief will prove to be a difficult one to settle.

The administration position on the automobile excise tax is that the tax is only a just burden to be borne by the users of motor cars in return for the benefits of the automobile industry.

MINE STRIKE CHIEFS FOR SEPARATE PACTS

Tell British Workers to Get Best Terms Possible; End of Tie-Up Is Seen.

(Special Cable Dispatch.)
London, Nov. 19.—Perplexed at the rejection of their coal strike peace terms, the miners' delegate conference said today to the men in effect: "If you don't like our solution, see what you can do for yourselves."

The baffled leaders, after a prolonged debate, voted to instruct the districts to open separate peace negotiations on their own account, subject only to ratification afterward by the national federation. That leaves the miners leaderless, and the strike now seems doomed to fizzle out in a piecemeal fashion.

"Emperor" A. J. Cook, the miners' general, will go to Russia early next month for the Russian Trades Union congress. His departure will remove from the scene the most belligerent figure in the strike. He has opposed all attempts at conciliation.

CARMICHAEL THOMPSON HOME; TO REPORT TO COOLIDGE

Philippines Seen as a Great Future Market for U. S.
Manufacturers.

HERE ABOUT DECEMBER 1

Seattle, Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—Col. Carmichael A. Thompson, personal investigator for President Coolidge in the Philippine islands, sees the islands as one of the great future markets for American manufactures, he said on his arrival here today.

With four trunks filled with data gathered in a six months' tour of the 40 provinces in the islands, he is preparing to report personally to the President about December 1.

Col. Thompson, accompanied by his wife and a staff of newspaper men, arrived on the Admiral-Oriental liner President Jefferson.

"I saw first hand the conditions in which the natives live—even the semi-civilized," Col. Thompson said. "I liked the people, and have reached an understanding. I think, of their problems."

The information gathered "must be whipped into the shape of an official report to the President," he said, adding, "Naturally, it is impossible for me to make a statement of my findings until that report has been made."

A brief visit to Japan and China was made by Col. Thompson in an effort to understand trade and social relations existing between those countries and the Philippines.

"While we spent too brief a time in the Orient proper to allow an exhaustive research," he said, "I shall include the nature of those relations in my report."

Gilli's relatives had abandoned him when he was sentenced to prison, but on his release today he found that they had gathered from all parts of Italy to greet him and even applaud him. The inheritance is stated to have come from an aunt, Sofonisba Mallati, who died in San Francisco.

Francis Winston, 8 years old, 32-A Bates street northwest, was near death last night in Sibley hospital from injuries suffered when he was struck by a Washington Railway & Electric Co. street car on North Capitol street, near P, at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. His skull was fractured, Dr. Samuel Becker said.

According to the police the boy ran from behind a moving automobile directly in the path of the street car going north on North Capitol street. Russell Wachtel, 224 Seaton street northeast, motorman of the car, told authorities he did not have time to bring the car to a stop before striking the child.

16 BELIEVED KILLED AS BLAST RIPS SHIP AT SPARROWS POINT

Blazing Oil Is Sprayed on Scores at Dock
Near Baltimore.

SCREAMS OF VICTIMS, MINUS LIMBS, HEARD

Maimed Men, With Clothing
Afire, Crawl About Trying to Escape Flames.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—A blast of fire which cut asunder the Norwegian tanker Mantilla, exacted an apparent toll of 16 lives as the vessel lay in dry dock at the Sparrows Point plant of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation today. Scores of workmen were caught in a flaming rain of death as an amidships oil tank exploded with a deafening report, to spew burning oil and twisted steel over the decks and surrounding scaffolding.

Eight shattered bodies had been recovered. A check of the men known to have been aboard the vessel indicated eight still unaccounted for.

No definite count of the injured had been possible. The more seriously hurt had been scattered to every available hospital. Scores were treated at the plant first aid station and allowed to go.

A Spectacle of Horror.

Piercing screams from the ship's deck and its interior, only partly prepared volunteer rescue workers for the spectacle which greeted them when they rushed upon the reeling vessel a few minutes after the blast. Men whose arms and legs had been torn off dragged themselves over blood splattered planks, vainly endeavoring to extinguish flaming clothing. Billows of flame and smoke shot through ragged rents in the Mantilla's steel plating.

Windows in nearby factory buildings were blown out and steel was rained about the neighborhood. A piece of steel 30 feet long and 8 feet wide, weighing several tons, was hurled into an adjacent dry dock to crash down on the deck of the steamer Mount Clary. No one was aboard the Mount Clary.

Firemen who fought for nearly four hours to control the fire before they could carry out the dead were forced to trample over bodies and parts of bodies strewn about the ship.

John Erickson, a member of the Mantilla's crew, said "the boat heaved and shook with a terrific roar. I saw steel plates and pieces of men flying through the air. Some of them flew by my head. Then the smoke began to blind me, but not before I saw the deck was covered with men and parts of men. The clothing of most of them was on fire."

Reared and Plunged Like Horse. Another eye-witness, Matthew Prucha, a workman, described how the ship "reared and plunged like a horse and seemed to lift 10 feet from the dock."

Prucha was in the engine room. "I made my way to the deck," he said, "and saw men running around with their clothing on fire and crying. Some of them had their arms off and some lay on the deck with legs or heads cut off."

Prucha said he was cut off by flames when he went into the bow to try to help some of the injured. He found a rope and slid down it to the dock. "I thought about the poor fellows still back there in the Mantilla with the fire coming toward them," he said. "There wasn't anything anybody could do for them."

Women Flock to Scene. Women flocked in scores from the town of Sparrows Point and the Eastern section of Baltimore to the Bethlehem plant when news of the explosion spread. They stood in weeping groups behind police lines as sheeted forms were carried from the bulk and rushed to hospitals; the confusion was such that most of them were unable to learn the fate of their relatives. No identification of the dead had yet been possible.

The Mantilla was being overhauled preparatory to sailing Monday for Tampico in the service of the Mexican Petroleum Co.

Chester Rosten, father of six children, walked the streets for four months attempting to find work. Today a contractor engaged in repair work on the Mantilla hired him and two hours later, on the deck of the Mantilla, Rosten was caught in a belch of flame when the tank exploded. Hospital physicians said he probably would die.

The Mantilla is owned by W. Wilhelmson, of Ponsberg, Norway, and commanded by Nils Danielsen.

Oas, generated from oil left in the central storage tank when the vessel was unloaded, was unofficially stated as a possible cause of the explosion.

Firemen said there would be danger of a second explosion from other tanks during the next 24 hours.

Capt. Danielsen was on his way to the vessel from the dock office when the explosion occurred, and an officer shouted to him, "It's your boat, Capt!" "We both raced down there," the captain said, "and there she lay, all blown apart and fire eating up the leavings. The men that were caught in there were howling and crying for help." Jardine Orders Omaha Stockyards Rate Cut

(By the Associated Press.) Acting for the first time under specific authority vested in him under the Packers and Stockyards act passed five years ago, Secretary Jardine yesterday decided that commission rates charged in the Omaha stockyards were excessive and ordered

68 commission merchants to lower their charges in the face of a demand for increases. The secretary's decision, which was characterized by counsel for the commission men as "so drastic that it will put every commission man in Omaha out of business," asserted the respondents were acting through their exchange to exercise a monopoly and to fix rates arbitrarily. Wide-spread interest was manifested in the order because of its effect on the livestock industry.

BUDGET WILL URGE $765,406,000 IN 1928 FOR DEFENSE OF U.S.

$354,345,000 Army Estimates; Navy, $322,061,000, and Air, $89,000,000.

$3,000,000 INCREASE FOR WAR DEPARTMENT

Naval Service Suffers Cut; Imposing Curtailments; Aviation Fares Well.

The Army and Navy Journal today will say that budget estimates for the fiscal year 1928 call for appropriations of $354,345,000 for the War Department, $322,061,000 for the navy and approximately $89,000,000 for aviation in all services. For all, $765,406,000. The article continues:

For the navy service the above figure is more than $7,000,000 above the budget's direct appropriations, which total less than $315,000,000, and may include indirect appropriations and contract authorizations which annually swell the total. This year the amount available for the current fiscal year was $327,199,450.

For the army the above figure representing the total available "for military purposes" is an increase of approximately $3,000,000 over the current appropriation.

Air Service Included. Out of this, however, comes the additional expense for carrying out the "increase" provided for the air corps by the five-year aviation program authorized by the last Congress, but not appropriated for. For the first time it is definitely known that the administration is committed to the policy of absorbing this additional cost in the appropriations for the regular establishment.

"Out of this increase also must come about a million and a half dollars to provide rations for the 9,000 men which the shortage of funds this year, as disclosed by the Army and Navy Journal, made it impossible to carry, the average for the entire year being 110,900 men, instead of the 118,750 as authorized" by the last Congress. The field clerk legislation and other items of increased cost also have to be added.

The air corps program provided for an increase in the authorized enlisted strength of the army of 408 second lieutenants and 6,240 men. The announced policy of the department is to transfer officers and men from other branches to fill the air corps, and it is believed that no reduction in the present recognized strength of the army is contemplated though authorized by the new law.

Navy's Strength Curtailed. "The estimates for the navy, showing a decrease from current appropriations, have forced adoption of serious curtailment of the existing strength afloat. The most serious effect will be felt from the reduction in the number of only 80,175 enlisted men as against its recommendation for 83,000 for the current year. In view of the fact that the work of modernizing the six older battleships will be completed this year, three having been out of commission for six months and the other three now going into the yards for the next six months, next year crews will be needed for three additional battleships. Furthermore the two new aircraft carriers go into service next spring and men must be provided to man them.

Confronting this emergency the Navy Department has decided on a drastic expedient, provided Congress does not overrule the budget and provide the 86,000 men needed, to place out of commission five of the six older battleships of the scouting fleet, leaving one to serve as flagship for the naval forces in the Atlantic.

For New Plane Construction. In both services aviation, in view of the curtailment of the total estimates, has fared fairly well. Funds available for the air corps will provide for carrying in a large measure new plane construction provided by the air program for the second year, but the increase in funds does not carry out to a great extent the material development and other phases of the program. Naval aeronautics receives a reduction of something like $1,500,000, but it is estimated that about three-fourths of the planes scheduled for construction the second year can be built owing to the standardization of types and quantity buying now in effect.

The marine corps faces a curtailment of funds and a subsequent reduction of possibly 1,000 men. Reserves are well provided for in both services. Hearings on the naval appropriations began on November 17 before the subcommittee on naval appropriations behind closed doors, and strict secrecy has marked the entire proceedings so far will be maintained until the opening of Congress and the transmission of the budget estimates.

E. T. Meredith Denies Candidacy for 1928

New York, Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—E. T. Meredith, of Iowa, Secretary of Agriculture under Woodrow Wilson, has announced that he is not a candidate for the Presidency on the 1928 Democratic ticket. His name has frequently been mentioned as a possible entrant in the presidential race, but when asked about the matter, he said: "What is the use of talking about that? I am not a candidate. All my friends know that."

Coolidge Uninformed On Plans of Butler

President Coolidge, it was said at the White House yesterday, had no knowledge of the report that William M. Butler intended to retire as chairman of the Republican national committee. Mr. Butler was a guest at the White House last week, it was said, and if he had any thought of relinquishing his post did not mention it to the President.

G.O.P. SWING TO FRAZIER MAY GIVE SHIPSTEAD BID

Senator Watson Favors Taking Both Back to the Party's Fold.

BORAH AND SCHALL IN LINE

A movement already underfoot to bring Senator Frazier, of North Dakota, back into the regular Republican fold may result also in an effort to get Senator Shipstead, of Minnesota, it was indicated yesterday.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, assistant majority leader, back at his office, said he not only was in favor of taking Frazier back, but also of inviting Senator Shipstead to join the party, now that the Farmer-Laborites have dissolved.

Senator Borah, of Idaho, in a letter to Senator Watson first suggested Senator Frazier should be taken back and the way has been paved to restore his former committee assignment. Senator Schall, of Minnesota, in fact, let it be known from Minneapolis that he gladly would defer his ranking membership on the Indian affairs committee to Senator Frazier. This would make the latter chairman of the committee by virtue of the defeat of Senator Harrell, of Oklahoma.

The North Dakota senator is reported as being willing to come back in the party under these conditions. Shipstead undoubtedly would seek reelection as a Republican, Watson said, inasmuch as his party no longer is in existence. With Shipstead and Frazier, the Republicans would have 49 votes in the Senate to the Democrats' 47.

There has been no indication of a change in the sentiment of the House Republicans toward the insurgents, who were read out of the party along with the group of senators, now all dead except Frazier.

MEXICAN DEPUTIES BACK CALLES' STAND ON KELLOGG'S NOTE

American Demands Incompatible With Respect Due Their Country, They Declare.

GROUP IS READY TO FACE
DANGER AND SACRIFICES

U. S. Openly Violating Dignity and Sovereignty of Nicaragua, Obregon Says.

Mexico City, Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—A group of about 20 members of the chamber of deputies, representing various political factions, has sent to President Calles a message regarding the latest note of the United States government to Mexico regarding the land and oil laws. It is asserted that the note forwarded by Secretary of State Kellogg is reported to contain demands incompatible with the respect due Mexico's sovereignty. The signatories announce that they are ready "to participate in all dangers and sacrifices."

"It is reported insistently," says the message of the deputies, "that the last note of the United States embodies demands incompatible with the respect due to Mexico's sovereignty of your government."

"The same reports say that you are willing to perish rather than submit. Having decided to take a place of honor among the strong men of our history, we, the undersigned, both as Mexicans and members of the legislature, will support your energetic, patriotic attitude, being ready to participate in all dangers and sacrifices."

Obregon is astounded.
In the opinion of Gen. Alvaro Obregon, former president of Mexico, it is astounding that Nicaragua should ask the United States to intervene in that country against Mexican interference "when the United States is openly violating the sovereignty and dignity of Nicaragua."

In an interview General Obregon asserted he did not believe Mexico had interfered in the Nicaraguan revolution, because "when we have been forced to revolt in Mexico, we never have had enough military element, and either took them from our enemies or brought them from the United States. It is astounding," Gen. Obregon added, "to attempt to condemn Mexico for alleged interference in the domestic affairs of Nicaragua and to ask the United States to aid in preventing such shameful interference when the United States is openly violating the sovereignty and dignity of Nicaragua."

"It shall be glad if the Mexican social movement is developed in other countries, because it represents the welfare of the many against the fears of the few."

Sees American Death.
The United States has been requested by the Nicaraguan revolutionary committee in Mexico City, composed of exiled Nicaraguans who opposed the former Chamorro and are hostile to the present Diaz regime, to cease "obstructing the expression of popular will in Nicaragua."

A statement by the committee says: "The Nicaraguan people, through our committee, appeal to the American people to stop the present American policy of obstructing the expression of popular will in Nicaragua. They also appeal to them not to permit the good name of the United States to be stained through complicity in the White House with a band of mercenary politicians controlling power in Nicaragua."

"Neither their interests nor the interests of the plutocrats whom they serve are worth the loss of a single American life, as undoubtedly the Americans will be killed before American military strength succeeds in forcing the Nicaraguans to submit to the Diaz regime."

Mexican Troops Rout
Force of 500 Yaquis

Nogales, Ariz., Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—Advices to the Nogales Herald say Mexican Federal troops Wednesday began to turn the tide of Yaqui Indian victories on the Sonora war front on the eastern slope of the Sierra de Bacatetas, when they surrounded 500 Indian warriors, victors in the recent Las Arenas battle, and put them to flight with heavy casualties, after a conflict lasting over an hour.

The Federals lost two officers and 19 men. The Yaquis left on the field many dead and wounded.

Green's Advice to Mexico
Is to Settle Church Row

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—A letter from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, to Luis N. Morones, Mexican secretary of commerce, industry and labor and real head of the Mexican Federation of Labor, pleading for settlement of the present religious controversy in Mexico, is quoted in the forthcoming January issue of Columbia, national magazine of the Knights of Columbus.

The letter, written under date of August 2, 1926, with the approval of the executive council of the labor organization, is part of an article by Frank Duffy, second vice president of the A. F. of L.

"I would not be frank with you if I did not state that in my opinion wise council must prevail, sound judgment must be exercised, tolerance must be practiced and temperate language must be used if we are to continue to maintain the cordial and friendly relations which have existed between the American Federation of Labor and the Mexican Federation of Labor for years," said the letter, after pointing out that "many believe that the action which has recently been taken by the government of Mexico is an interference with the exercise of religious freedom."

Liberal Leader to Agree
To Make Peace, Is Report

Managua, Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—Among reports circulating here is one that Gen. Morazan, leader of the liberal revolutionary forces on the Atlantic coast, probably will agree soon to make peace with the government.

This conclusion is considered likely the government will pay off all the troops in the liberal army, give the leaders a lump sum and even permit participation in the government by the liberals.

Rear Admiral Julian L. Latimer, U. S. N., is reported arranging the details of a Bluefield, while Lawrence Dennis, the American charge, is cooperating with the government here.

2,600 Killed in Traffic In U. S. During October

Chicago, Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—Approximately 2,600 men, women and children were killed on the streets and highways of America during October, a statement issued today by the National Safety Council sets forth. This is a daily toll of 84 lives, an increase of 10 lives a day over the figures for October, 1925. There were four more lives lost last month than during November last year, which was the worst month of that year.

Norfolk, Va., Paterson, N. J., San Antonio, Tex., and Somerville, Mass., were the only cities of 100,000 population or more that did not have a single fatality.

Chicago, Baltimore, Cleveland, Detroit, Milwaukee, New Orleans, Columbus and Dayton had worse months in October than the previous month.

Contrary to expectations, 75 per cent of the accidents occurred under ideal driving conditions.

1,000 ALIENS SMUGGLED ACROSS CANADIAN LINE

Quebec Ring, Says Inspector,
Pays $175 Per Head for Deliveries.

TWO ARRESTS IN VERMONT

Newport, Vt., Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—As many as 1,000 aliens were successfully smuggled across the Canadian border this summer by a Montreal ring, Chief Immigration Inspector James Ford said here tonight.

John Adab, one of two men captured in an automobile near Rutland on Wednesday, when another automobile escaped, was an employee of this ring, which operates under the name of the Quebec Land and Improvement Co., Inspector Ford stated. Adab, with a man giving the name of Sada, was held here tonight for arraignment before the United States commissioner tomorrow.

Inspector Ford declared that the Montreal company advertised abroad the possibilities of America and told prospective clients that an unguarded 3,000-mile boundary separated Canada from the United States. The aliens, who were mostly Czechoslovakian and Jewish nationals, were landed in Canada and kept there a month or two before the attempt was made to smuggle them over the line.

Adab confessed, according to the inspector, that he received $175 for each alien delivered safely at Boston. Ford after it had been placed in the hands of a jury when the couple were reported to have become reconciled. Mrs. Manton recently petitioned to have the case returned to the trial calendar. She charged Manton failed to live up to an agreement to give her one-third of his $100 a week salary.

Today Mrs. Louise Riley, a janitor's wife, testified to accompanying Mrs. Manton to a hotel room, where they found Manton and Miss Rambeau. In the first trial Miss Rambeau explained Manton's presence by saying that she had hired him as a valet to help her in studying her theatrical lines.

Pskov Peasant War Denied at Moscow

Moscow, Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—Reports of a peasant revolt in the Pskov district of Soviet Russia were denied in a semi-official statement today. "They were referred to as 'fabrications'."

(Quoting news from the Estonian frontier, an Exchange Express dispatch on Thursday reported that former czarist officers were behind a peasant uprising in the Pskov district and that soviet cavalry had been sent to suppress the movement.)

But this kind of support rapidly dwindles, it is pointed out, when the responsible leaders in Mexico see the handwriting on the wall and realize that the regime of any particular president is drawing to its close.

Secretary Kellogg, in a note written to the Mexican foreign minister in the summer of 1925, stated that the United States would support the Mexican government only so long as it gave adequate protection to American rights and interests. Mexico's reply to Mr. Kellogg's last note may indicate whether there is any remaining hope that such protection may be expected. The United States government, however, now expects something more than argument and dissertation relative to the Mexican viewpoint. The time for note writing is regarded as having passed and the actions of Calles are now to provide the test.

U. S. Stand Still Assailed
By Mexicans and Press

Mexico City, Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—Mexicans generally and the newspapers continue to voice resentment over the non-action of the United States in the face of the Mexican government's outside interference in Nicaraguan affairs and that the new Nicaraguan president had made the direct charge that Mexico was involved in the revolutionary movement against the government.

Among those who take exception to the attitude of the United States is former President Obregon. "It is astounding," he said today, "to attempt to condemn Mexico for alleged interference in the domestic affairs of Nicaragua and to ask the United States to aid in preventing such shameful interference when the United States is openly violating the sovereignty and dignity of Nicaragua."

Nicaraguans exiled in Mexico City, under the name of the Nicaraguan revolutionary committee, have communicated to the United States a request that it "cease obstructing the expression of popular will in Nicaragua."

These Nicaraguans, who opposed former President Camorro and are not in sympathy with the new regime under President Diaz, appeal to the United States not to permit its good name to be stained through complicity with a band of mercenary politicians controlling the power in Nicaragua.

Severely criticizing the United States for its attitude with regard to Mexican-Nicaraguan relations, Excelsior declares the real peril to Nicaragua is not the United States, but the Yankee interference in its politics and revolutions, but "the danger of enslavement of Nicaragua by the Yankees and the perpetual establishment of the Stars and Stripes over Nicaragua."

Bryn Will Hold Two Posts as Minister

Oslo, Norway, Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—Heimer H. Bryn, Norwegian Minister to the United States, was named by the king today to fill the post of Minister to Mexico in addition to his duties at Washington.

Ship Is Burned; 3 Men Missing.
Quebec, Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—The steamer Montreal of the Canadian Steamships Line was destroyed by fire while en route from Quebec to Montreal early today. There were no passengers on board, but three members of the crew of 40 were missing when a check-up was made.

TAKING ALIEN PROPERTY DENOUNCED BY MONDELL

Confiscation by U. S. Would Be Barbarous, He Tells House Committee.

GARNER PLAN SUPPORTED

(By the Associated Press.)
Confiscation by the United States government of German individuals' property seized during the war would be barbarous and in violation of civilized law, Frank W. Mondell, former Republican leader of the House, declared yesterday before the House ways and means committee, considering legislation to dispose of alien property.

The sanctity of private property during time of war, he said, dates back to the magna charta, and although the government has a legal right to keep the property, the moral obligation is too great, particularly since President Wilson, at the close of the war, promised to hold inviolate private property of Germans.

He declared that confiscation of private German property by allied governments was not an example for the country to follow, and endorsed in principle the plan advanced by Representative Mills (Republican), New York, to return the property to the American citizens' claims against the German government out of the national Treasury. The Treasury, he said, could be reimbursed by the separation payments under the Dawes plan and the risk would be no greater than the risk taken in any of the international loans.

Representatives of American claimants gave additional support to the plan of Representative Garner (Democrat), Texas, providing for the return of all German property used for peaceful business enterprises and confiscation of that used in violation of the neutrality laws.

Henry N. Arnold, of New York, in charge of claims arising out of the dismantling of the Black Tom terminal, declared if the property was returned without security American claims probably never would be settled.

MRS. MANTON AGAIN PUSHES DIVORCE SUIT

Wife of Actor Once More Names Miss Rambeau
as Corespondent.

New York, Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—For the second time within a year the divorce suit of Mrs. Mabel Manton against her actor husband, William Kevitt Manton, naming Marjorie Rambeau as co-respondent, was tried in supreme court today. Justice McGoldrick reserved decision.

The case was dropped last winter after it had been placed in the hands of a jury when the couple were reported to have become reconciled. Mrs. Manton recently petitioned to have the case returned to the trial calendar. She charged Manton failed to live up to an agreement to give her one-third of his $100 a week salary.

Today Mrs. Louise Riley, a janitor's wife, testified to accompanying Mrs. Manton to a hotel room, where they found Manton and Miss Rambeau. In the first trial Miss Rambeau explained Manton's presence by saying that she had hired him as a valet to help her in studying her theatrical lines.

Smoking by Coeds
Is Termed Bravado

Los Angeles, Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—Condemning the habit of smoking among women as an indulgence carried on in a spirit of "naughtiness" and "bravado," Dr. Rufus B. Von Kleinsmid, president of the University of Southern California, has placed a ban on cigarettes for coeds of the institution.

The student welfare committee has voted to cooperate in the enforcement of the ban by refusing to register, if necessary, women students who do not respect the regulation in both letter and spirit.

CATALINA CHANNEL SWIM CLAIMED BY OIL MAN

Entreed Water 2:36 P. M. and Reached Coast 4:03 A. M.,
Motorboat Parties Say.

SPECIAL TRAINING DENIED

Huntington Beach, Calif., Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—W. G. Taber, a 28-year-old New Yorker, crawled out of the Pacific here today with the announcement that he had swum the Catalina channel, which heretofore has been unswum by a single swimmer. The channel is about 22 miles wide.

Taber, an oil worker, formerly lived at San Bernardino after coming to California from the East.

The occupants of two motor boats testified they had accompanied the swimmer. One of the craft was piloted by Miss Helen Poe, of Hollywood, and the other by Alfred Higgins, of San Diego.

Taber reported that he went into the water at Santa Catalina island at 2:36 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He waded ashore here, he said, at 4:03 o'clock this morning.

When he heard that Gertrude Edrie had negotiated the English channel, he made up his mind that he could do the same across the Catalina waterway, "and so I did," he added. All the nourishment he had during the trip, he said, was some bouillon cubes. He greased his body thoroughly for the event.

Sonya Tolstoi Loses Claim as Legal Wife

Moscow, Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—Sonya Tolstoi's claim to be considered the legal wife of Sergei Yesenin, eccentric Russian poet, who committed suicide last year, was rejected by the soviet provincial court today. The court held that the marriage was illegal because Yesenin never had obtained a divorce from Isadora Duncan, American dancer.

The Yesenin case came before the courts some months ago when they were called on to determine how the property left by the poet could be apportioned among his three wives and other relatives. His first wife was Zinaida Meyerhold, well-known actress. He then married Miss Duncan, and after they parted, Sonya Tolstoi, grandchild of Count Leo Tolstoi.

Smoking by Coeds

Los Angeles, Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—Condemning the habit of smoking among women as an indulgence carried on in a spirit of "naughtiness" and "bravado," Dr. Rufus B. Von Kleinsmid, president of the University of Southern California, has placed a ban on cigarettes for coeds of the institution.

The student welfare committee has voted to cooperate in the enforcement of the ban by refusing to register, if necessary, women students who do not respect the regulation in both letter and spirit.

HELPING NICARAGUA.

President Coolidge has made it very clear that while he wishes to avoid complications in dealing with Mexico, he intends to do his full duty toward Nicaragua. Recognition by the United States government of the Diaz government in Nicaragua has changed the situation completely. The United States now holds toward Nicaragua the same position that it holds toward the government of Mexico—that is, a friendly attitude which forbids it to extend any favors to revolutionary movements. There is an embargo against shipment of arms to Mexico except to the government itself. An embargo was placed against shipment of arms to any faction in Nicaragua before Diaz was recognized. Now Nicaragua, like Mexico, is entitled to import arms from the United States.

As for assisting the Nicaragua government in coping with Mexican aggression, it is plainly the duty of the United States to act. Otherwise American life and property would be placed in peril, and foreign governments would, of course, call upon the United States to protect their nationals. Assistance to Nicaragua would not imply hostility to Mexico unless Mexico is engaged in making war on Nicaragua. As official denial is made that the Mexican government countenances aggression against Nicaragua, no valid objection can be raised by the Calles government if American vessels should intercept Mexican gun-runners attempting to land in Nicaragua.

Unfortunately for the good faith of the Mexican denials, it is known by the United States that Mexican national vessels have been used in filibustering expeditions against Nicaragua and Mexican army officers and soldiers have been captured and killed in Nicaragua. Mexican rifles are in the hands of Nicaraguans fighting their own government.

The strength given to the Nicaraguan government by the American government, augmented by a little assistance from American naval vessels, will soon put an end to the communist intrigues in Nicaragua unless the Mexican government itself is at the bottom of the movement. The sooner the facts are demonstrated the better for all concerned, including the Calles government. If it is alive to its duty it will heartily cooperate with the United States and Nicaragua in suppressing conspirators operating from a Mexican base.

GROWING FEDERAL POWER.

Before the New York Chamber of Commerce Senator Bingham, of Connecticut, deplored the growing Federal power over purely State matters. He was discussing the proposition to federalize education. He held that the growth of Federal power tends to change the fundamental relations on which the government is based. Centralization destroys personal responsibility, self-respect, and character. It dwarfs moral and spiritual growth, and citizens soon forget to exercise the vigilance that safeguards liberty.

If success crowns these efforts to make the Federal government responsible for the social welfare, the result will be a protecting paternalism, which is an atrophy of self-government. It is the supreme necessity for correcting social evils, says Senator Bingham, which arouses indifference to exercise their powers as members of the body politic.

Federalization leads to autocracy and despotism. It multiplies Federal bureaus, and helps create a bureaucratic government. Federalization adds to the burdens and responsibilities of Congress and the executive. In the face of the many and varied subjects before Congress, it is certainly unwise to impose responsibilities upon the members which should rest upon the States. The executive, also, is burdened with too many duties and responsibilities. With a score or more of independent commissions and bureaus in operation, many overlapping others in duties, the President is harassed by the task of settling disputes and determining policies to be pursued.

The recent decision of the Supreme Court giving the President exclusive power of removal of officials appointed by him, together with the responsibility of supervising more Federal commissions and their personnel and activities, will greatly increase the burdens of the executive office. The limit of physical endurance has been reached.

If Americans wish to preserve their liberties they must maintain local and State governmental powers. A bureaucracy at Washington is not self-government, but the denial of it. Senator Bingham is doing good public service in calling attention to the danger of greater federalization.

WHISKY FOR MEDICINE.

It was to be expected that the Antisaloal league would not share the view of Gen. Andrews, in charge of prohibition enforcement, that the supply of medicinal liquor has reached such a low ebb that authority should be given certain selected distilleries to make a supply to provide against future requirements. The constitutional amendment and the Volstead act are aimed against the use of liquors as a beverage. Use for medicinal and industrial purposes is lawful. Apparently the duly constituted authorities charged with the responsibility of administering the law are to be placed under the self-appointed supervision of the Antisaloal league. At a conference of officials of this organization in Washington a few days ago this was the subject of a protracted discussion. Finally it was referred to a special committee with instructions to determine the league's attitude upon legislation designed to carry out the recommendations of the Treasury.

Treasury officials announce that the supply of good, pure whisky, old enough to be valuable for medicinal use, is running so low that it should be replenished. At present there exists only about 15,000,000 gallons available for this purpose. The consumption of whisky issued upon doctors' prescriptions amounts to about 2,000,000 gallons a year. It requires six or seven years to properly "age" this distilled product before it can be safely prescribed and used as a medicine. Gen. Andrews contends that unless manufacture is permitted at once the present supply will be completely exhausted before that needed in the future can be produced and matured. Secretary Mellon will ask Congress to grant this authority.

The indications point to opposition to this recommendation, organized and backed by the Antisaloal league. If the league confines its activities on the liquor question to enforcement of the constitutional amendment alone and the suppression of the proscribed use of liquor as a beverage it will be in a much stronger position before the country than if it attempts to interdict something that is not prohibited either by the Constitution or the laws. Physicians may differ as to the therapeutic value of whisky, but the amount annually consumed upon the advice of doctors seems not to warrant the layman in challenging its medicinal qualities. This is a question that ought to be decided without precipitating the ever-present conflict between the "wets" and the "drys." Will the extremists be content to let the opportunity pass to put Congress "on record?" In their eyes there is no differentiation between whisky used to save human life or relieve suffering and that which is consumed in violation of the Constitution and the law.

IN HONOR OF CUNO RUDOLPH.

It is likely that the greatest dinner ever given in Washington as a testimonial to a faithful public servant will be that for which final arrangements were perfected yesterday. The dinner will be at the New Willard on the evening of Friday, December 17, and the guest of honor will be Cuno H. Rudolph, soon to retire from office as president of the board of commissioners of the District of Columbia.

Mr. Rudolph has served the community as commissioner under four Presidents. No more loyal or efficient service was ever rendered to a municipality than that which the retiring commissioner has rendered to Washington. It is only fitting that his fellow residents should express their appreciation of his work.

BUYING ON TIME.

An economist of good repute announces that he has discovered the actual figures involved in installment buying. The annual national income is estimated at $70,000,000,000. The total purchases of merchandise on the installment plan, he says, is about $6,179,000,000; and of real estate about $1,575,000,000, or a total of about $7,754,000,000, representing 11 per cent of the total national income. The total debt owing on these installment purchases averages about $2,638,000,000, less than 4 per cent of the national income.

Examination shows that the total sales of automobiles on the installment plan is about $3,446,000,000, of which amount about $1,938,000,000 is regularly outstanding in deferred payments.

It is asserted that installment buying has increased only 8 per cent since 1925, while savings deposits in banks and trust companies have increased 17 per cent.

Experience shows that a very small number of installment buyers default on their payments, and that the plan has enabled millions to buy and furnish homes who otherwise would still be paying rent. The struggle to pay for a home is a great incentive to thrift and saving. An automobile is now more often a necessity than a luxury.

The credit plan of buying, through building and loan associations, has been in operation a long time and has proved its value. The figures given by the economist show that the amount of credit involved in installment buying for all purposes is a small percentage of the total national income. So long as this income continues, the installment system is solid.

ARMY PROMOTIONS.

The controversial matter of army promotions is about to come before Congress again. At the last session it was ordered that a report on the army promotion system be prepared, for which the War Department formed a special committee. The study has recently been completed and approved by the general staff, and day before yesterday was gone over carefully by Secretary Davis and Representative Frank James, of Michigan, acting chairman of the House military affairs committee.

None of the proposals of the committee have been made public, but it is known that radical changes in the existing regulations are contemplated. Among other things it is believed that the new regulations will make it mandatory for an officer above the grade of lieutenant colonel to qualify for promotion to a higher grade within a specified time limit, on penalty of being transferred to the reserve. Furthermore, all officers in the active service would be required to keep themselves in a condition of physical fitness at all times. This provision alone, it is said, would weed out immediately 300 to 400 officers who are at present receiving full pay.

The only interest the public will have in the new legislation is that it should produce more efficient officers. Too often in the past the army promotion system has permitted the individual to stagnate and grow rusty. If, however, he can be forced to demonstrate his right to promotion under penalty of transfer if he does not become a more able officer within a specified time, there will be much more tendency to study and improve.

The promotion system in the army has been revised several times. Each revision has been an improvement over the preceding plan. It is to be hoped that the new scheme will settle this matter once and for all, to the satisfaction of the army personnel, the War Department, and the public.

FILMS IN SCHOOL.

In the schools of Rochester, Springfield, New York, New York, Atlanta, Winston-Salem, Kansas City, Detroit, Chicago, Denver, Los Angeles and San Diego, there will be started shortly an extensive two-year experiment in which a moving picture camera will be used in place of textbooks in the study of geography, health, and general science. Twenty films are being made, and the remaining 30 will be ready for use at the beginning of the school term of 1927. None of them are designed for entertainment purposes nor are they to be shown in the general assemblies of the schools, but they are being built step by step to meet the requirements of intellectual development of school pupils in classroom work from the fourth grade up.

It should not take long for the moving picture to prove its value in this connection. Textbooks always have been considered dull, uninteresting reading by the majority of pupils. There is much to justify this opinion, for the difficulties of presenting purely academic material in interesting form are almost insurmountably great.

The moving picture will not have this hurdle to jump. Before all else, the movie is alive, and gives life to any subject with which it concerns itself. These classroom films may not be as exciting as the reels shown at the neighborhood theater, but they will be able to bring the text to the classroom in a clear, comprehensive and impressive manner.

The experiment will be watched eagerly by educators throughout the country. Fortunately the tests will be carried on over a period sufficiently long to enable an actual conclusion to be reached as to their value. If successful they will prove an important development in the science of teaching.

THE RIVER AND HARBOR BILL.

Before Congress adjourned last July a tentative agreement was reached whereby the river and harbor bill is to be taken up for final consideration in the Senate on December 15. The principal reason for postponing consideration in the House until near the close of the last session was the desire of the chairman, Mr. Dempsey, that the report of the engineers on his pet project, the so-called "All-American" ship canal through the State of New York, should first be received.

That report when it reached the House gave a black eye to the New York scheme for direct connection between the lakes and the sea by means of a water route for ocean-going craft. Since the original report was made another has been published through the War Department, which is even more emphatic in opposition to the "All-American" ship canal.

While the hopes of Mr. Dempsey and his colleagues that Congress will take over and deepen the barge canal are not likely to be revived through congressional action during the coming session, and while that particular snag in the channel of the passage of the river and harbor bill may therefore be considered as eliminated, there is still a very formidable obstacle in the way. A dispatch from Buffalo announces that the Great Lakes Harbors Association of the United States and Canada went on record at its meeting there on Wednesday as firmly opposed to action on the bill unless it is amended to eliminate all reference to the Illinois river and Chicago drainage project.

The whole lake region, Canadian and American, is up in arms against any plan which will permit further diversion of the waters of the lakes through the Chicago drainage works, and the result of the determination of the association to oppose the passage of the bill in the Senate, so long as it carries even a suggestion of increasing the flow of water through the Chicago sewer, may bring about the defeat of the measure.

INOCULATING DOGS.

The number of deaths from rabies throughout the United States average about 100 annually. This disease is almost invariably inflicted upon human beings from the bites of dogs afflicted with hydrophobia.

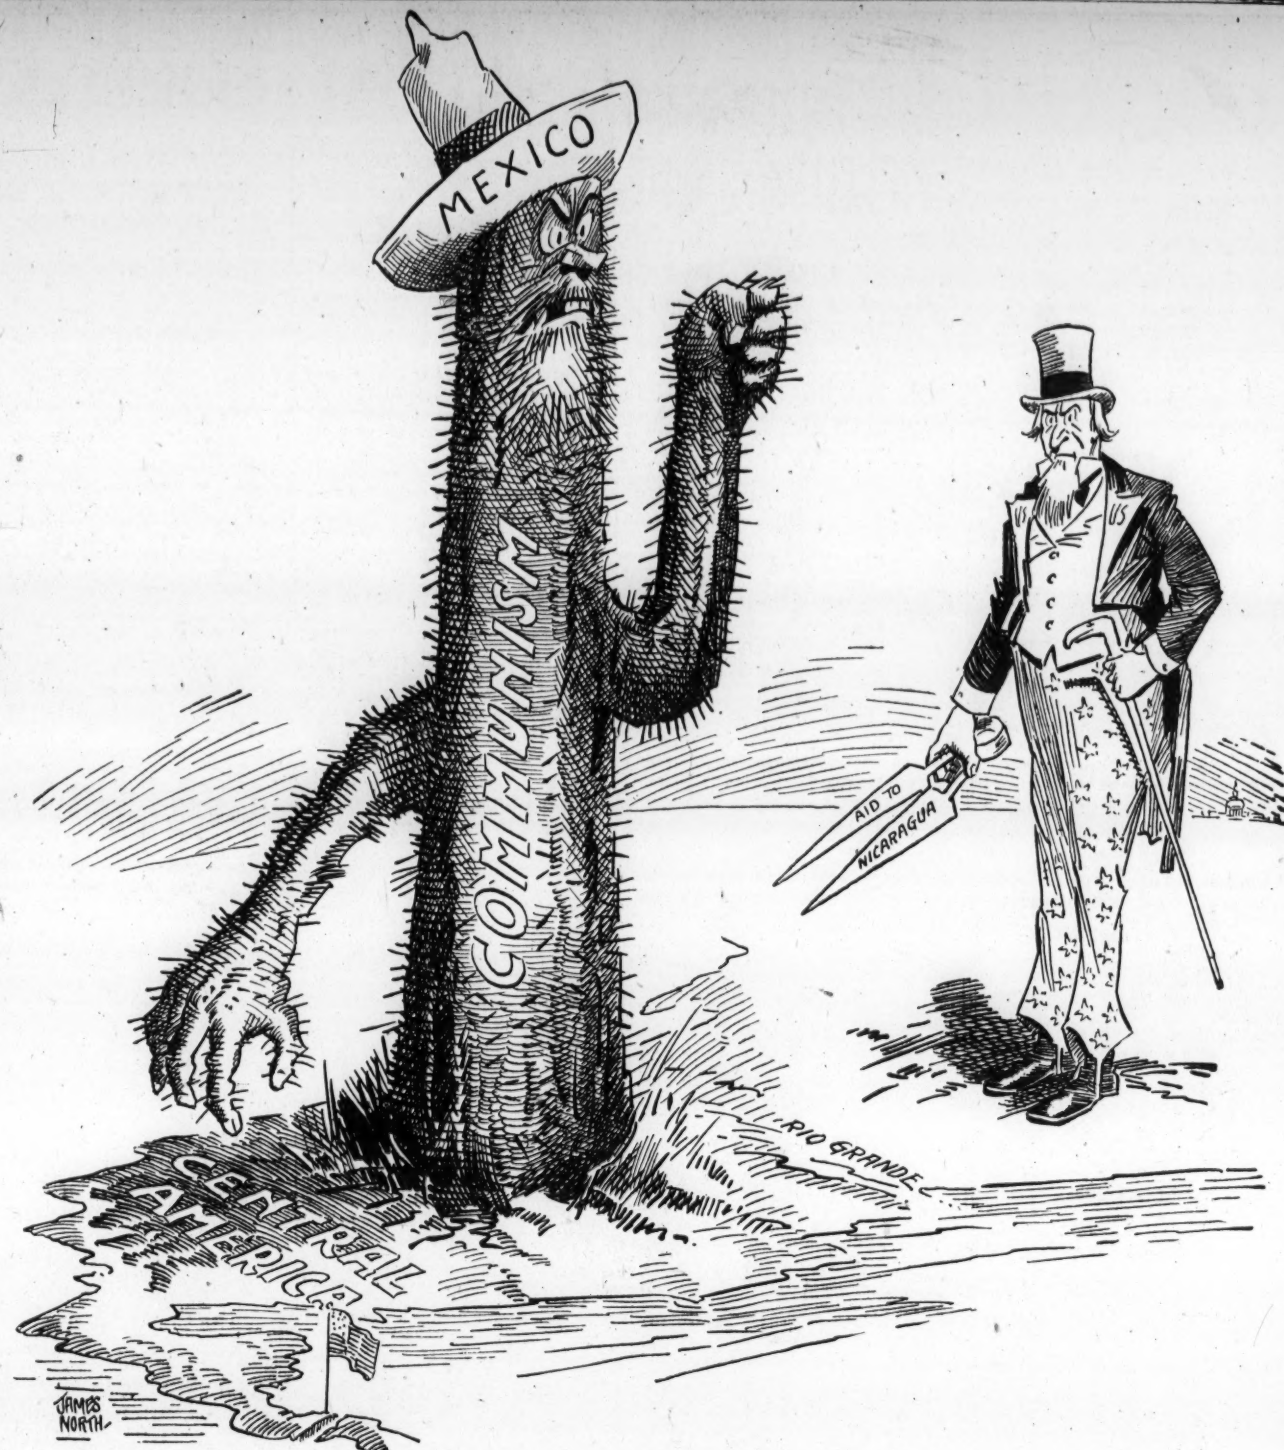

Some municipalities have endeavored to meet the situation by means of inoculating the entire canine population in such a way as to make the dogs immune to the disease. These attempts have met with variable results, but on the whole have not proved entirely satisfactory. While there has been no general movement in Washington to inoculate the dog population, many owners have submitted their pets to veterinarians in the hope that their particular dogs might be saved from the bad effects of an encounter with one of the tribe afflicted with the frothy-mouth disease.

Now comes the information that Dr. Harris, health commissioner of Manhattan, is preparing to try wholesale inoculation upon the dog population of his bailiwick. He will call a conference of physicians and veterinarians for the purpose of devising ways and means for carrying out his plans.

The immediate cause of this determination on the part of Dr. Harris is the death from rabies of a small boy who was bitten last August and died two weeks ago. That the disease is gaining headway in the metropolitan district seems to be indicated by the fact that in an examination of 395 dogs during the first six months of this year, 200 cases of rabies were discovered. During the same period in 1925, when the health authorities examined 152 animals, only 25 reacted to the test.

Just why Malden should be any more concerned on this point than Funguswawney, Pa.; Pennsboro, N. Indifference to Crime

By ROBERT QUILLEN

It seems impossible that thirty-five thousand men should whip six hundred thousand. But that is what happened at Issus, when Alexander snatched from Darius the most complete victory in history.

It wasn't a fight. Five minutes after the first blow was struck, Darius was out of his chariot and racing into the hills. His troops were broken and in flight. Only the Persian nobles, who fought for their homes, and one other contingent stood fast and met iron with iron.

That other contingent was composed of Greeks—hired men, to be sure, but free men who long had been used to democracy. Years ago the middle West was infested with cutthroats and thieves. They terrorized the land for a season and then the decent citizens, who were accustomed to running their own affairs, grew weary of disorder and either hanged the outlaws or drove them farther West.

The business was repeated on the plains. Outlaws thrived for a season. They might be thriving yet if the decent citizens had possessed no sense of personal responsibility. But these decent ones were free men who stood flat on their feet and asked no favors. They did not whine or wonder why somebody didn't do something. Having a disagreeable job to do, they did it, and then gave the outlaws decent burial.

Today crime flourishes and organized gangs pillage where they will, and the servants of the law make little headway against them. The people seem indifferent. It is their indifference that makes the condition possible.

What is the matter? Why do the people care so little? The matter is that the people are no longer free and no longer feel a sense of responsibility. Virtue has gone out of them.

A paternal government, meddling, coddling, forever making itself greater and the citizen less great, has unwittingly stolen away the birthright of the people.

Teaching Fish to Swim.

Trenton State Gazette: Baltimore's Y. W. C. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Putting Teeth In It.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Strange that all the papers, The Post included, have overlooked the late Prohibition Dental Konclave, in which more teeth in prohibition were demanded. To paraphrase a portion of Henry Carey's chronophotologues: "Let some teeth be called."

And let the man who calleth be the caller; And in his calling let him nothing call. But teeth! teeth! teeth! O for more teeth, ye gods!"

Judging from the outcry, it is supposed that the false teeth now being used are very unsatisfactory to the prohibition leaders.

It is presumed that the appeal is aimed at Congress, but in the meantime do our prohibition friends intend to start a dental college, in which various dental chairs will be installed, presided over by experts in dentistry—for instance, a professor on eye-teeth, one on dog-teeth, another on saw-teeth, with the chair on wisdom teeth left vacant for the time being, at least until a suitable professor can be found? There should also be a chair on the various gases, especially laughing gas, instead of prohibition monoxide gas. It might be well to have a chair for gum treatment also. Then when everything is all set, we can all put on smoked glasses and look for the prohibition millennium, where there will be no more "weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth." J. W. STERNER.

Socialism In The Schools.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your fairest, most informative and, in the writer's judgment, best edited newspaper in Washington I note an article, even date, in re Prof. Flury's "st prize" article in the Forum, defining socialism.

The writer agrees fully, as a former college professor, with Gen. Fries' criticism of Prof. Flury and his Forum "st prize" article. The board of education of Washington in its recent reported reply to Gen. Fries says: "The beliefs expressed in his (Flury's) definition (on socialism) had found no place in its classroom teaching." That is, Prof. Flury has not only in his classroom taught his implied criticisms of our economic American conditions that obtain under our form of government.

The Washington board of education is further reported: "Every individual (meaning teacher in our public schools) is entitled to entertain his or her own private views regarding religion, the functions of government and political and economic issues without necessarily involving questions of loyalty with respect to the fundamental ideals of our institutions." Indeed! Well, the writer will state, from the standpoint of an ex-educator, that Prof. Flury's "private views" on socialism as given in his Forum article can not but now and then tincture, gloss over and be imparted directly, if not indirectly and overtly, in his daily teachings in his classroom.

I commend to Prof. Flury and the members of the board of education also the reading of J. L. Garvin's article in the new Encyclopedia Britannica on "Capitalism in America."

VETERANS' DAY HELD AT LINCOLN STATUE

Battle Songs of Civil War Are Sung by Old Soldiers and Their Sons.

"Veterans' Day" was observed yesterday by veterans and sons of veterans of the civil war, who laid wreaths at the foot of the Lincoln statue in front of the courthouse, with colorful pageantry and the singing of patriotic hymns. The banners of celebrated regiments and American flags were unfurled and added a historic background to the ceremonies.

Battle songs of the civil war were sung by the old soldiers, who stood rigidly at attention during the rereading of Lincoln's Gettysburg address by Past Commander Adelbert A. Taylor. Floral tributes were laid at the base of the statue by Maryland Division Commander Elmer P. Corrie, and Mrs. Alice B. Corrie, president of the division auxiliary. Remarks were made by Col. Winfield Scott, commissioner of pensions; Commander Corrie, Mrs. Corrie, Commander Charles V. Pettys, of the Department of the Potomac, G. A. R.; Commander H. H. Burroughs, of Cushing camp, and J. Clinton Hiatt, past division commander. An invocation was pronounced by the Rev. Frank Steelman, of Trinity church.

The exercises were held under the auspices of William B. Cushing camp, No. 30, and Cushing auxiliary No. 4, of the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War. A pledge of allegiance was recited by the assemblage and the colors were presented by Color Bearer Percy Parker and a group of auxiliary color guards in charge of Miss Helen F. Downing, president of Cushing auxiliary. Guests of honor included Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, Corp. James Tanner, H. V. Speelman, F. T. F. Johnson, and Representative Robert G. Houston, of Delaware.

Foreign Fabric Suits

Tailored to the Washington Type

Washington—noted for its leadership of the country in legal and political affairs, now comes to the front as a leader in Men's outfitting. It has evolved a suit distinctly and distinctively for Washington men; a type of suit that expresses tasteful conservatism and yet "up-to-the-minute" style-rightness demanded by "Better Dressed" men.

It is only fitting that The Men's Store should be the first to satisfy such a demand by stocking such a line of Suits as are now being shown in The English Shop.

The important woolen and worsted mills of England and Scotland have furnished us with fabrics identical to those used by the best custom tailors in London, to be tailored into our "Washington Type" Suits. This was our first step in making these Suits.

The second step has been to ascertain just what types of Suits the Washington men favor and to have such types tailored to our order by finely trained craftsmen.

Third, such Suits must be priced right for Washington Men. And the prices—$55, $65, $75—are well within the range of men who take a justifiable pride in their clothes.

Every Washington man who wears one of these "Washington Type" Suits may know that, as his city leads the country, so is he foremost in the ranks of "better dressed" men.

LIQUOR PLANE SEIZED AT FORD'S REQUEST

Auto Manufacturer Waits for Arrest of Pilot Landing at His Airport.

Detroit, Nov. 19 (By A. P.)—An airplane containing 14 cases of whiskey was seized at the Ford airport early today at the request of Henry Ford. Henry Spence was arrested as the aviator who brought the plane to the airport last night.

A watchman discovered the liquor. Mr. Ford was notified and the State police were called. The automobile maker himself waited several hours at the field last night with officers in hopes the aviator would return to his plane.

Field attaches said the aviator alighted late yesterday, receiving permission to park his plane overnight, in accordance with the hospitality custom at the airport.

Following questioning by State police the man under arrest admitted he was the pilot of the plane and that he is C. W. Roderick, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Crew Quits Ship After Fighting Blaze in Vain

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 19 (By A. P.)—The schooner Annie Kent, of Baltimore, was burned in Chesapeake bay, near Sandy point light, early today, her crew of four men abandoning the vessel after hours of futile battle with the blaze which originated in the hold. The men were picked up by the steamer City Norfolk and brought to Baltimore. None was hurt.

The fire was discovered shortly after midnight. Capt. Cordman and his men pumped tons of water into the hold before he gave orders to abandon ship. She was owned by C. C. Paul & Co., of Baltimore.

tion, a speech dealing with the proposal to create a State railroad commission.

Mr. McKenna, a Republican, ran for the national House of Representatives three times before he was elected. He won by an overwhelming majority in 1884 and took his seat the following year. He remained in Congress until 1891, being the only man from across the great divide who was a member of the ways and means committee. In that committee, he had to deal with important tariff legislation and was closely associated with Representative McKinley, later President of the United States.

In February, 1922, Mr. McKenna was appointed by President Harrison to be United States judge of the Ninth or Pacific coast circuit, a post he held until March, 1927, when he entered the cabinet of President McKinley as Attorney General. He was married in San Francisco June 10, 1869, to Amanda Borneman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Borneman, of that city.

FRIES DISAVOWS USING LEGION IN FLURY ATTACK

Statement Made at Closed
Meeting of National Press
Club Post.

GENERAL NOT REBUKED

Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, chief of the chemical warfare service of the army and commander of the local department of the American Legion, last night disavowed any intention of acting in behalf of the legion in his attack on Mr. Flury and against anyone being kept in the schools of the District of Columbia who says in effect that workmen in America are slaves.

The legion post of the National Press club held its meeting last night behind closed doors. It had been rumored that the post would adopt a resolution rebuking Gen. Fries, and there are known to have been members who were in favor of such a resolution. Gen. Fries appeared before the meeting at the end of which the post issued the following statement:

"The National Press Club post of the American Legion at its regular meeting, November 19, 1926, took no action expressing an opinion as to the merits of the issue raised by recent correspondence between Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, department commander of the legion, a member of the National Press Club post, and officials of the school system of the District of Columbia.

"Gen. Fries stated at the meeting that he had no intention of making any demand on behalf of the legion that Mr. Henry Flury be removed from his present position in the schools of Washington.

The Housekeeper

Informal entertainment has never been so popular and a supper served from a tea-wagon may be made so attractive that it will bring exclamations of delight from the guests, says Ruth Jenkins who, in the December McCall's gives suggestions about this widely-interpreted meal.

Says Miss Jenkins:

"A tea-wagon supper of simplicity and charm, served from the attractive, individual tea-wagon, may have all the appeal of intimacy or the allure of gracious hospitality. Its possibilities are legion for the hostess who has only one helper, or none at all.

"Thought must be given to the planning and carrying out of a tea-wagon supper, however, because with its varying possibilities, it may have corresponding complications. It must have attractiveness, simplicity and order.

"The menu you serve will decide the correct china to use. Simple, gay decorations are appropriate for a course or two. The more elegant ware should be used for a larger company, when you serve a more elaborate menu. Formal dinnerware should never be used.

"Shall it be a cold supper, or a hot one? Chicken and waffles, or lobster a la Reine, or oysters and main breads and fruit; or what? Here are a few menus:

- Three Kinds of Sandwiches
Apples, Nuts, Raisins
Doughnuts or Spice Cookies
Coffee, Cocoa or Cider
- Fruit Salad
Cheese Sticks or Buttered Rolls
Salted Nuts
Coffee
- Cold Meat
Potato Salad with Green Pepper and Young Onions
Hot Biscuits or Muffins
Individual Fruit Jelly or Individual Pies
- Jellied Chicken
Creamed Potatoes
Lettuce or Tomato Jelly Salad
Individual Ices
Small Cakes
Coffee
Salted Nuts

"A tea-wagon supper usually means a 'lap' supper. Therefore have large linen napkins, by all means!

"The evening which starts off with a tea-wagon supper is sure to be a success, whatever the weather, cards, dancing, music, radio or conversation."

"LET'S GO"—To Church

Our Perspective

"I will lift up mine eyes into the hills from whence cometh my help."—Ps. 121:1.

WE climb the mountain to find out where we are. The view from the peaks gives us perspective. We know our present location because we learned its geographic setting. Man reacheth in to know himself; he reacheth out to know his fellows; he reacheth up to know God.

He can know neither himself nor his fellows unless he knows God. Knowing God is climbing the mountain where we can see life clearly, and see it as a whole. The view from the summit gives us strength for the daily tasks, patience for the routine, courage for the seemingly impossible, and insight into the moral issues hidden within each day's business.

The church points the way to the summits of life. Its weekly services call men from the drudgery of the shops and the hubbub of the street to the quiet of the spirit life, where character gets its bearing and the soul can calm itself in the Eternal Presence.

Charleston, S. C., Is Chosen for 1927 Convention; Chapter Awards Read.

NEW PRIZE FOR CHILDREN

Richmond, Va., Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—The United Daughters of the Confederacy, at their thirty-third annual convention here today, selected Charleston, S. C., for the next annual meeting. Delegates from Houston, Tex.; Biloxi and Gulfport, Miss.; and Los Angeles, Calif., made bids for next year's gathering.

The sessions today were devoted principally to reports of general officers, including those of the third vice president, general, Miss Katie Daffan, of Texas; registrar general, Mrs. W. J. Woodliff, Oklahoma; custodian of crosses of honor and service, Mrs. R. Philip Holt, of North Carolina; and custodian of flags and pennants, Mrs. Jackson Brandt, Baltimore. Dr. Matthew Anderson reported on the American Legion history and the Yale university press.

Miss Daffan's report, which dealt with the work of the children of the Confederacy, recommended that the children place a memorial to the Rev. Father Ryan in the new St. Mary's church, now being built on the site of the old church in Mobile, Ala., and suggested that the memorial be in the organ. She also announced a new prize, the Mollie Day Daffan cup, in memory of her mother, to be given to the member of a children's chapter who performs the most unselfish service for a Confederate veteran or widow.

Awards announced in the report follow:

The Robert H. Ricks banner, for the chapter having the best report of work done, to the Julia Jackson chapter, Charlotte, N. C.

The Harvey loving cup, to the division registering the greatest number of children of the Confederacy, to the W. S. Coleman loving cup, to the chapter placing the greatest number of Southern books in school libraries, won by the Ninth of June chapter, Petersburg, Va.

The Florence Golder Paris medal, to the division registering the second highest number of children of the Confederacy, to Mrs. W. R. Cowper, of North Carolina.

The Grace Clare Taylor cup, to the chapter securing the greatest number of new members, the Margaret Rose chapter, Little Rock, Ark.

Two past presidents general, Mrs. Livingston Kowchewsky and Mrs. R. W. McKinnon, of Tennessee, were sent to invite Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, who was in the hotel, to the convention. She had another engagement, and said she hoped to attend another session.

Eppe Hunton, Jr., of Richmond, urged the daughters to help in the upkeep of the Battle Abbey here, Virginia, he said, had done its part for the army, but the rest of the South had not contributed as it should, and the gate receipts of the institution only paid for operating cost, and not for the upkeep of the building and grounds.

Subscriptions taken from the floor for the Randolph relief fund for needy Confederate women totaled over $5,000. Mrs. Lawton announced she would contribute any deficit in the fund needed to care for the 29 aged women now on the list.

Workman's Death Held Accident.

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of accidental death in the case of George W. Smallwood, carpenter's helper, of Alexandria, Va., who died at Walter Reed hospital from a fractured skull received when he was caught beneath the falling wall of a building under construction on the grounds.

$15,000 Asked of W. R. & E. Co. Ellen Murphy, 4529 Ninth street northwest, filed suit yesterday in circuit court against the Washington Railway & Electric Co. to recover $15,000 damages for alleged personal injuries. Through Attorney John J. O'Brien the plaintiff says that on April 14 she was struck by a street car on Michigan avenue.

TWO SOUSA CONCERTS STIR CAPITAL AUDIENCES

Band of Veteran March King Wins Ovations From Home-Town Crowds.

NEW SELECTIONS PLEASE

John Phillip Sousa, veteran march king and composer and native Washingtonian, was accorded two ovations yesterday when he gave a matinee performance and one at night with his band at the auditorium. The afternoon performance was primarily for school children, who were admitted at special rates, and the applause from them was hearty and long.

The audience, which included many officials and diplomats, greeted the bandmaster when he ascended the rostrum at night. One of the features of both performances was the playing of the latest Sousa march, "The Gridiron Club," dedicated to the club of that name. The new march has the Sousa verve and magnetic quality about it and should prove popular. A humorous sketch, "The Wets and Dries," brought a number of laughs when the audience recognized famous drinking songs of the past now slightly obsolete under Volstead.

A new song by Sousa, "Crossing the Bar," to Tenneyson's immortal words was favorably received at the afternoon performance. The Washington Post-March was the first encore number used by Sousa at the matinee. The composer was generous with encores, using his well-known marches. The greatest applause was given to "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

Composers again demonstrated the art of getting symphonic effects from a brass band, notably in the ballad, "Tam O'Shanter" (Chadwick), in the afternoon. The symphonic poem, "Le Voyeur" (Tchadikowsky), at the night performance.

Two vocal solos, "Crossing the Bar" and "On the Beautiful Blue Danube," gave the beautiful voice of Miss Marjorie Moody an opportunity to be heard in concert. Miss Moody's soprano was rich in lyric quality, ample in tone and volume and capable of singing against a band when necessary. The correct soldier John Dolan, was effective in his selections, and Howard Goulden gave xylophone solos. Altogether it was a satisfying Sousa day.

MOVE MADE TOWARD ENGINEERING CHANGES

Society Urges Revision of College Curriculum and Increase in Salaries.

Recommendations looking to the improvement of teaching methods in engineering which are expected to have a great influence on future engineering education were adopted by the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education at the close of its two-day meeting yesterday in the Academy of Sciences building.

A report based on an extensive research of three years recommended sweeping changes in present methods. It was first recommended that the curriculum be revised, that the "gifted student" be given greater latitude during the last two years of the course, that the student be required to have attained superior marks in the subjects of mathematics, science and English.

It was recommended that the more promising students be encouraged to become teachers, and that steps be taken to increase salaries. The report was presented by Charles F. Scott, of Yale university; W. W. Wickenden, of New York, and H. P. Hammond, of the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute.

M. B. Ketchum, of the University of Illinois, presided at the meeting. The society, it is said, represents 125 of the 150 engineering colleges of the country. Each college will be appointed to study the report and to report next June to consider what applications have been made.

SECOND LOVE

By MALCOLM DUART.

(Copyright, 1926, Eugene MacLean.)

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Margie Allen, young and lovely, is excluded from her own home because of her advanced views, and goes to stay with Audrey Parrish, who is a young girl married to a poor man. Margie makes love to Parrish, and later to Audrey's handsome father, Harry Morton. Her plans are interrupted by Nona, famous stage dancer, in love with Morton, who comes from London to visit Audrey. Margie, jealous of Nona, tells her that she (Margie) has secretly married Morton, and then wheedles the latter into giving her a costly sapphire ring, which she shows, in strict confidence, to Nona and to Audrey, separately. Then she goes to see Parrish, in the small electrical shop in which he has become bookkeeper.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

(Names and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER XLII.

"MARGIE!" he exclaimed, coming to her with outstretched hands.

They were alone in the establishment.

"I'm so glad you've come," he went on, happily. "This has been a terribly lonesome job. Why—it's been two weeks since I saw you!"

He dropped the hand she had given him, and dragged forward a chair. "Sit down, and just let me see you," he said.

She took the chair. "I brought something to show you," she told him.

To show me? His tone was aglow with pleasure.

"Yes—look." She extended her hand, with Morton's ring upon it.

He glanced at it, and his face fell.

"What's that?" he asked.

"A ring, of course, silly," she said.

"I wanted to show it to you."

"But," he puzzled, "is it your ring? Is it new?"

"I'll say it's new," she said, complacently. "Harry Morton bought it in London, and he just gave it to me last night."

She moved her hand for better inspection. Parrish was not looking at the sapphire, but at her. All the gladness was gone as he asked: "Why did you bring this thing to me?"

"It isn't a 'thing' at all—it's a beautiful sapphire," she said.

"Don't you like it?"

He walked up and down the narrow office, his hands thrust in his pockets. Suddenly he strode to the main aisle of the store, went to the front door, looked it, and came back.

"We've got to have this thing out," he said, his face flushed with emotion. "I haven't seen you for two weeks. Then you come to show me a gift you accepted from another man—!" he pointed his finger at her—"a man who has had women running after him for 20 years."

She regarded him coolly. "You mean you don't like me to have this ring?"

"Confound it, you have no business to take his ring. He was talking loudly, his body half bent above her.

"What business is it of yours whose ring I take?" she inquired. Apparently she was enjoying the conversation.

He clenched and reopened his fingers, slowly. "From the time you set foot in Audrey's house," he charged, "you made love to me. You know you did!"

"What of it?" he roared. "You led me to think you were in love with me! And like a fool I began to care for you—and we talked about getting married if Audrey divorced me! Can you deny that?"

She adjusted the strap of her small kid slipper. "I don't care to make any denials," she said.

Parrish's fury was mounting steadily. "I gave you a hard shaking, once—and now I've a notion to give you a beating!" he shouted.

"Just you try it!" Her eyes were suddenly hard.

He folded his arms, as if to keep himself under control. "What did you come here for?"

There was a malicious lift to her lip as she answered: "To show you my pretty ring—and to tell you that you're a fool."

Parrish stared.

"You're just a mutt," she went on. "Did you think for a moment I'd want a fellow who hasn't a dime to his name? And who is so Puritanical he's got to talk about 'marriage' every time a girl looks at him? And who turns red as a beet if she kisses him? John, you're an awfully poor fish."

"Don't you like it?"

He walked up and down the narrow office, his hands thrust in his pockets. Suddenly he strode to the main aisle of the store, went to the front door, looked it, and came back.

"We've got to have this thing out," he said, his face flushed with emotion. "I haven't seen you for two weeks. Then you come to show me a gift you accepted from another man—!" he pointed his finger at her—"a man who has had women running after him for 20 years."

She regarded him coolly. "You mean you don't like me to have this ring?"

"Confound it, you have no business to take his ring. He was talking loudly, his body half bent above her.

"What business is it of yours whose ring I take?" she inquired. Apparently she was enjoying the conversation.

He clenched and reopened his fingers, slowly. "From the time you set foot in Audrey's house," he charged, "you made love to me. You know you did!"

"What of it?" he roared. "You led me to think you were in love with me! And like a fool I began to care for you—and we talked about getting married if Audrey divorced me! Can you deny that?"

She adjusted the strap of her small kid slipper. "I don't care to make any denials," she said.

Parrish's fury was mounting steadily. "I gave you a hard shaking, once—and now I've a notion to give you a beating!" he shouted.

"Just you try it!" Her eyes were suddenly hard.

He folded his arms, as if to keep himself under control. "What did you come here for?"

There was a malicious lift to her lip as she answered: "To show you my pretty ring—and to tell you that you're a fool."

Parrish stared.

"You're just a mutt," she went on. "Did you think for a moment I'd want a fellow who hasn't a dime to his name? And who is so Puritanical he's got to talk about 'marriage' every time a girl looks at him? And who turns red as a beet if she kisses him? John, you're an awfully poor fish."

Margie Allen, young and lovely, is excluded from her own home because of her advanced views, and goes to stay with Audrey Parrish, who is a young girl married to a poor man. Margie makes love to Parrish, and later to Audrey's handsome father, Harry Morton. Her plans are interrupted by Nona, famous stage dancer, in love with Morton, who comes from London to visit Audrey. Margie, jealous of Nona, tells her that she (Margie) has secretly married Morton, and then wheedles the latter into giving her a costly sapphire ring, which she shows, in strict confidence, to Nona and to Audrey, separately. Then she goes to see Parrish, in the small electrical shop in which he has become bookkeeper.

"MARGIE!" he exclaimed, coming to her with outstretched hands.

They were alone in the establishment.

"I'm so glad you've come," he went on, happily. "This has been a terribly lonesome job. Why—it's been two weeks since I saw you!"

He dropped the hand she had given him, and dragged forward a chair. "Sit down, and just let me see you," he said.

She took the chair. "I brought something to show you," she told him.

To show me? His tone was aglow with pleasure.

"Yes—look." She extended her hand, with Morton's ring upon it.

He glanced at it, and his face fell.

"What's that?" he asked.

"A ring, of course, silly," she said.

"I wanted to show it to you."

"But," he puzzled, "is it your ring? Is it new?"

"I'll say it's new," she said, complacently. "Harry Morton bought it in London, and he just gave it to me last night."

She moved her hand for better inspection. Parrish was not looking at the sapphire, but at her. All the gladness was gone as he asked: "Why did you bring this thing to me?"

"It isn't a 'thing' at all—it's a beautiful sapphire," she said.

"Don't you like it?"

He walked up and down the narrow office, his hands thrust in his pockets. Suddenly he strode to the main aisle of the store, went to the front door, looked it, and came back.

ARMY-MARINES CLASH TODAY BEFORE DIGNITARIES

Kendall Green Team Plays Feature

Gallaudet Primed for Blue Ridge Game at Park Today.

Both Elevens Adept at Passing; Byouk May Be Contest's Star.

Evenly-matched and primed for battle, the Gallaudet and Blue Ridge college elevens will clash at American league park in today's lone collegiate attraction here, starting at 2:30 o'clock.

Rivalry, spurred by five years of battles, and the fact that the colleges have about the same number of students to draw athletes from, has caused Gallaudet to look to the Blue Ridge contest as its big game of the season.

Kendall Green officials moved the game to American league park when it was apparent that the limited seating capacity on their home field was insufficient to take care of the spectators. It is reported that 200 Blue Ridge students will accompany the team.

President Hall, of Gallaudet, with other members of the faculty, will occupy a box midway of the sideline decorated with the college colors. Members of the Gallaudet alumni and friends of the school will attend.

Coach "Teddy" Hughes is more than anxious to beat the Mountaineers today. Last season Blue Ridge carried off the honors by a small score. Hughes has done everything in his power to insure a conditioned and well-drilled team. Every man on the squad is said to be confident of victory.

There is every indication that the contest will bring out a spectacular brand of football. Having spent the most part of the season playing heavier elevens, both Gallaudet and Blue Ridge have perfected their forward-passing offenses.

Blue Ridge showed some neat air plays against George Washington and also made its only gains against Catholic University before leaving the city, does the throwing, while Herberling and C. Engle, ends, are the best receivers.

Herberling, a tall, wiry player, also takes care of the punting. He gave a brilliant exhibition against Catholic University before leaving the city, does the throwing, while Herberling and C. Engle, ends, are the best receivers.

Byouk, incidentally, is credited with being one of the best passers in this section. His specialty is long heaves, which Capt. Scarvie and Wright have shown ability to throw. Byouk also has been specially groomed for ball carrying. The line-ups follow:

	Position	Blue Ridge
Gallaudet	Center	Byouk
Buman	Right	Engle
Belger	Center	Byouk

Yale-Harvard in Spotlight; 80,000 to See Game Today

Elis Slight Favorites as Only Traditional Honors Remain; Mountaineers Meet Carnegie and Lafayette Plays Lehigh.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—Gridiron rivalry of more than half a century turns the Eastern football spotlight tomorrow on the New Haven bowl as Yale and Harvard come to grips before 80,000 spectators. Only traditional honors remain for the embattled ranks of Blue and Crimson this year, but there was every prospect of a thrilling battle, for victory promised a cloak for many disappointments in both camps. Not in ten years has either eleven experienced so many setbacks as have come their way this year, each team having lost four of its seven contests.

Both were toppled by Brown and Princeton, while Yale lost to Maryland and Army, and Harvard was upset early in the fall by Geneva and Holy Cross. In this game is centered the hope of a saving finish by both elevens, with Yale rating a slight favorite by reason of a greater show of strength against the Bruins and Tigers.

Injured stars of the Blue squad, some of whom have been unable to start for several weeks, are ready for the fray. They include Larry Noble, the fleet ball carrier who flashed so brilliantly against Dartmouth, and Bill Kline, whose effectiveness in the backfield against Princeton was impaired by pre-game absence from the squad.

Principal games tomorrow and last year's scores:

Harvard at Yale, 6-0.	New York Univ. at Nebraska, no game.
Yale at Princeton, 17-0.	Georgetown at Fordham, 27-0.

TOD MORGAN TICKET BOARD RETAINS DEFiant TO SOLONS

Carl Duane Outpointed by Champion in 15-Round Bout.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—Clever little California 127½-pound fighter, is still junior lightweight champion of the world. Two rounds ago, Carl Duane, who is in nearly every round of his fifteen-round scuffle in the Garden tonight, witnessed by 15,000 fans. It was a case of a splendid boxer pitted against a rugged, willing fighter, who never could quite fathom the elusive defense of the champion, who gave a remarkable exhibition of cleverness.

But Morgan made one mistake during the journey when he tried to fight it out and maul with the game Duane.

At the end Morgan was bleeding from the right eye and the lower lip, but he never lost the lead. He held Duane safe right up to the close of the fight and won like a real champion.

Morgan's style baffled Duane. On his toes like a dancer, shooting his punches like a real marksman and landing on his target at almost every try, Tod had Duane bewildered. The Bronxite could not perfect a defense against those stinging lefts and those right arm swings that Tod put across at every opening.

Old Line Team Ready for Generals

Maryland Departs for Washington and Lee Contest.

Rauber and Stevens to Bear Watching in Annual Game.

MARYLAND university can gain Southern conference consolation today with a victory over Washington and Lee university's eleven and it was with a feeling of confidence that Coach "Curly" Byrd, the squad and several hundred supporters entrained yesterday for Lexington, Va., the scene of the annual battle.

The Generals after their crushing defeat by Virginia came back with a 13-0 victory over Virginia Poly last Saturday and are expected to be back in the state capital on their way to a victory over Kentucky and a tie with Princeton.

There were no flukes attached to the Washington and Lee victory over Virginia Tech. The Lexington eleven marched to two touchdowns and had the ball on its rivals 25-yard line when the game ended.

Facing such a formidable foe, Coach Byrd is fortunate in being able to present his strongest combination. The Old Liners escaped injury in their last game, a 13-0 victory last Saturday. Gerald Snyder, backfield star, has recovered from an injured ankle that kept him on the sidelines last week.

Ty Rauber, former Central High star, will probably bear the brunt of the attack for the Generals. He is considered one of the best conference line plungers, and the Maryland line will be kept busy if it means to stop the Washingtonians.

The Generals have been warned to watch for surprises, such as accounted for Maryland's touchdown against Virginia. On that occasion Mike Stevens ran 63 yards to a touchdown on the play that Maryland had possession of the ball.

The Old Liners had fooled Yale and North Carolina with a triple pass; and Coach Byrd, anticipating that Virginia was prepared for that play, switched to a fake pass, which caught the Cavaliers off their feet.

With no other game of importance booked in Virginia, a record crowd is expected in the new stadium. That section is a hotbed of football.

5 Minutes in Game Costs Rogers Year

Philadelphia, Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—Because he played 5 minutes with the Colgate varsity team against Ohio State in 1924, Charley Rogers, one of the Pennsylvania football team's magicians, will be barred from playing with Penn next year. Under the rules, his 5 minutes for Colgate makes him a player for the limit of three years.

Telling of his success this year, Rogers said: "Last year I tried to play a tackle, but this season I have been trying to outrun him and I found it worked out much better. To catch a punt and get away on a run is the biggest thrill I believe there is in the game."

Mary Browne Seeks Amateur Golf Status

Chicago, Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—When is a professional an amateur, wonders Mary K. Browne, who resigned from the ranks of tennis simon purists to become Suzanne Lenglen's opponent in C. C. Pyle's next troupe. Mary has no lament for having turned professional at tennis, but she is among the half dozen women golfers of the country and hopes her amateur status in that past will not be impaired.

She cites the case of Arnold Stutz, who thought a professional baseball player is a golfer of prowess in amateur tournaments and still is an amateur on the links, but she says that high officials of the United States Golf association have thus far been unable to enlighten her.

Following Through with Shirley L. Povich

There's to be a football game at New Haven this afternoon for no particular reason except that Harvard and Yale will follow out the precedent of other years and play out their schedules. This Harvard-Yale game today is the last game on the schedules of both teams. That is about the only thing of serious import that can be said about the contest.

With the championship of the Big Three safely salted in the halls of Old Nassau at Princeton, N. J., Harvard and Yale will play today to settle the only other matter skin to the once great triumvirate. Harvard and Yale will clash in mortal combat in the Yale bowl with 80,000 persons at the request of both teams. That is about the only thing of serious import that can be said about the contest.

Any laurels that might have accrued to the victor have been dispersed by sundry previous developments that have witnessed the defeat of Yale four times and Harvard four times this season. There may be, however, somewhere, something at stake in the contest other than the championship of the Big Two and this possibility finds the great majority of the country engaged in determining its character.

By the deduction process, one possibility is eliminated. The teams can not play for the championship of the Big Two, for the championship of Yale bowl. Army and Maryland and Princeton and Brown already have clearer title to this honor than have the Elis, or Harvard.

Eighty thousand persons, however, are going to see the game and there will be a corresponding decline in interest in the activities that take place on the gridiron of Yale bowl. The holders of the greater portion of these 80,000 ducats have probably battled more valiantly in obtaining them than the Harvard and Yale teams are likely to battle in the award of the bowl in today's game that is expected to decide the worst team in the Big Two in lieu of any other excuse to play the game except to close the season officially.

Reports that Harvard and Yale would drop football from their sports curriculum are groundless and should not be tolerated in any quarter. Whatever may be said of the Big Two, they can take punishment. They have taken much punishment this season. Army, Brown, Princeton, Maryland and some other teams have been the dispensers, and all have many kind words to say of Harvard and Yale. They declare without hesitation that when it comes to taking a beating there are no teams in the country that take beating with the grace, ease and dispatch of the Big Two.

Football in the Big Two still retains its tradition. If tradition caught on, scored touchdowns or kicked the point after goal, then Harvard and Yale would be battling for the championship of the eastern and western hemispheres, which include Notre Dame. But tradition being entirely apart from what happens on the field of play, Harvard and Yale are restricted to the narrow confines of conquest in the Big Two.

G. U. Definitely Off Navy 1927 Grid List
Annapolis, Md., Nov. 19.—That Navy and Georgetown will not meet on the gridiron next season was definitely announced today by Commander Jonas H. Ingram, director of athletics at the Naval Academy.

The matter had been hanging in the balance for several days. The fact that negotiations were closed some time ago for four big games for 1927, these being with Notre Dame, Michigan, University of Pennsylvania and the annual Army battle, athletic officials felt that it would be impracticable to take another foe of the strength of Georgetown.

The game played by the Hilltoppers here last Saturday won high commendation throughout naval circles. A grueling battle such as it was the best of sportsmanship prevailed throughout. Officials were called upon to inflict only two penalties, one against each team for off-side play.

Official announcement also was made that Duke university, Durham, N. C., will be played at Annapolis October 22 of next year. This is one of the alternate dates between the really big games of Navy's list.

Connaughton's achievements in past games have won the attention of metropolitan critics, especially those seeking material for All-American teams and it is certain that many in the crowd tomorrow will watch that broad back bearing No. 50 after each snap of the ball.

One of the largest crowds Fordham has played before this season is anticipated. There will be no counterattractions in the form of other local college football games.

The Georgetown starting lineup will include McGrath and Waite, ends; Saur and Mosko, tackles; J. Carroll and Connaughton, guards; Grigby, center; Gormley, quarterback; Thompson and O'Neil, halfbacks, and Nork, fullback.

G. U. to Match Fordham's Passes

Hilltop Team to Play Air Game Today in New York.

Connaughton to Draw Attention of All-American Critics.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Georgetown University's football team hopes to match Fordham's eleven, pass for pass, tomorrow when the ancient Jesuit gridiron rivals clash in their fourteenth annual game at the Polo Grounds. Latest information on the home team indicates that the aerial attack will be employed against Georgetown from the opening whistle.

The known weakness of Georgetown in its defense for the pass probably has led the Maroon to concentrate practice this week on tosses, but under the plans mapped out by Coach Lou Little and his assistants Fordham will find Georgetown's overhead game much more effective than the Maroons expect, and thus Georgetown's offense may prove to be an able defense.

Prior to leaving Washington Coach Little gave his men several new forward pass plays on which they drilled for three days. No hard scrimmage or work on other modes of attack was given the varsity team, while this practice was held, and the deceptiveness of the plays was mastered.

Deception is the main factor in these passes, which, if worked according to instruction, Coach Little, should be good for long gains. Capt. McGrath, Carl Waite, Jerry Thompson and Lucky O'Neil are on the receiving end, with Bob Nork and Bob Gormley throwing.

The weather may disrupt the plans of both teams, however, as the Polo Grounds gridiron is soggy from the recent rains. This condition might work havoc with the speedy players who are to handle the passes. A soft turf will not permit of the jerky movements of the receivers in completing aerial plays.

In the event that line attacks must be resorted to, Georgetown should have the advantage. With the ponderous Babe Connaughton throwing his 275 pounds into every play, Georgetown will considerably outweigh the Fordham forwards. A superiority such as this will allow the Hilltoppers to stand their ground better on the slippery field than their opponents.

No matter what style of attack is used tomorrow, Connaughton will be prominent throughout, that is, if he continues to play up to the All-American standard that he has set in previous games. At Syracuse Connaughton not only stopped the Orangemen in the line, but roamed around in the backfield, dragging down the ball carrier or the man who was in the act of passing.

Connaughton's achievements in past games have won the attention of metropolitan critics, especially those seeking material for All-American teams and it is certain that many in the crowd tomorrow will watch that broad back bearing No. 50 after each snap of the ball.

COOLIDGE WILL LEAD ARRAY OF NOTABLES TO SERVICE CONTEST

Fort Benning Team, With Smythe in Line-up, Hopes to Regain President's Cup Now Held by Leatherneck Eleven.

Stunts to Be Staged Between Halves—Sergt. Maj. Jiggs to Be Dropped From Plane in Parachute—Tunney to Be Absent.

POMP and color will mark the third annual President's cup football game between the Quantico Marines and Fort Benning Infantrymen today at 2 o'clock in the Catholic University stadium.

President Coolidge and Mrs. Coolidge will head the list of dignitaries who will view this top-notch gridiron conflict. Members from the diplomatic corps, generals of the army, admirals of the navy, chiefs of the marine corps, cabinet officers, members of Congress, as well as patrons from other walks of life, will attend.

Certain it is that no other football game offered this city has so gripped the interest of the heads of the American government. Football, however, is not expected to be sidetracked by the distinguished spectators or the many features arranged for the afternoon.

The Marines hold the President's cup, which was sponsored under the provision that only one officer play at any time in the line-up of the service teams. Fort Benning is the lone challenger this year. Navy having no representative eleven in competition.

With the game to be virtually an enlisted man's battle, some sparkling football is anticipated. The Marines will use Lieut. "Zebe" Bailey, who formerly starred at Maryland university, at center. Brunelle, Bukowy and Levey are their most dependable ball carriers.

Lieut. George Smythe, will be Army's lone commissioned player. He is a backfield star of the first magnitude, having performed brilliantly at West Point prior to competing with honors in other President cup games.

Both teams are drilled to the minute in the latest collegiate formations, and each is expected to employ the forward pass.

The President and Mrs. Coolidge will occupy a box on the Marines' side during the first half. With the close of the first half, he will march to mid-field accompanied by Secretary of the Navy Willbur and Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune.

They will be saluted by Secretary of War Davis, Gen. Hines and Gen. Summerall and will then be escorted to the Army side of the field from which section the White House chief will watch the remainder of the fray.

Marine corps officials announced last night that Gene Tunney would not be able to attend. The heavyweight champion must be in Youngstown, Ohio, at noon today to open a run for his money if the game is to violate this stage contract. Catholic university donated its stadium for the game.

Sergt. Maj. Jiggs, famous dog mascot, comes in for a feature place on the vaudeville program arranged by the Sea Soldiers. Providing weather conditions are auspicious, Jiggs will be attached to a parachute and dropped from an airplane.

The Marines have also completed plans for a comedy act in which they will demonstrate how mail robbers are handled by the guardians of Uncle Sam's mail.

In addition, the Marines will send up an effigy of the Army mule, the Doughboys' mascot, on a balloon, which will be shot down by sharpshooters.

Duke U. 34-0 Winner Over Wofford in Mud
Durham, N. C., Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—Jimmie DeHart's Duke University Blue Devils splashed and slid over a muddy gridiron here this afternoon to a 34-to-0 victory over the Wofford college terriers from South Carolina. Wofford was weak both on the offense and defense, while Duke's exhibition was nothing to brag about, the wet conditions the field handicapping the play of both teams.

Duke scored all of its points in the second and third quarters.

GERMAINE CHAUVELOT, 33 TO 1, BEATS BOWIE FILLIES

Claim of Foul In Feature Futile

Forever and Ever Is Winner by Scant Nose, Odds-On.

Kathleen Crosby and Fable Also Reward With Long Prices.

Special to The Washington Post.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 19.—A. M. Mounce's Germaine Chauvelot furnished a big surprise in the running of today's feature race when she beat a band of useful fillies in the second purse, a dash of 5/16 furlongs. The winner was neglected in the speculation and she paid her backers the generous dividend of $67.60 in the $2 mutuels.

Germaine Chauvelot, ridden by H. H. Thomas, gained steadily after a slow beginning and, finishing with a good burst of speed, got up in the last hundred yards to win going away by three parts of a length from Beaming. Single Star was third, four lengths away, and a head in front of the rest.

The latter suffered the most and, after weighing in, Abel went into the stewards' stand and lodged a claim of foul, which was not allowed.

Johanne Malben gave backers the 2-to-5 favorite, Forever and Ever, some anxious moments in the running of the fifth race, a dash of a mile and 70 yards for maidens. When the break came he was last to leave the post, and before he reached the first turn his mount was a trailer and apparently out of the struggle.

Still he waited with Forever and Ever and not until after passing the half-furlong pole did he make his effort. Rounding the far turn he went to the extreme outside and then began closing on the postmen.

Forever answered the call gamely, but looked a hopeless effort. At the end of the eighth furlong, when the break came, Forever and Ever was right alongside the postmen, but he was not strong enough to win the opening of the Maryland season, was somewhat neglected in the wagering for the six-furlong sprint, but he was the winner of the day.

In the early stages of the contest Kathleen Crosby showed a great dash of speed away from the barrier and had a five-length lead on his nearest pursuer for the first quarter, but then he faded in the middle of the turn for home had been reached he was through and Saratoga Male took command, but Kathleen Crosby was right alongside and did dispose of the latter and was 3 1/2 lengths to the good, while Saratoga Male saved the place by a length with Maxine beating out Pillager a short head in the short end.

Of the original seventeen scheduled to face the starter for the 1-1/16 miles of the sixth event, only seven remained to try for conclusions and a keen contest resulted with the running in which Delia Boy and Overfire figured chiefly in deciding the issue.

At the finish none but those in a di-Boy, who came from the extreme rear to get up in a stirring drive to overtake the leader, Overfire, and showing an upset came about with the running, when Fable, overlooked in the wagering and taking the lead with the rise of the barrier, raced on the head end of the procession and withstanding keen opposition in the early stages held to his task with a good amount of energy to last long enough to be home a winner by a short head. Green-back started to the place, while Complaisance proved the better of the other eleven starters.

Knockany, one of the cast-offs from the Rose establishment, finally made good after several failures when he justified the confidence placed in him in the decision of the 6-furlong event second on the program and, incidentally, was another at odds-on to score brackets during the present season.

Knockany faltered by going into the lead soon after the start, and showing the way by a small margin through the running was home winner by a neck over Mungo, with Teal Ball just a length farther back. Hot Pepper refused to leave the barrier and was left.

PEWEE TEAMS PLAY.

The Rex Pewees will take on the Apache Pewee eleven on the latter's field Thanksgiving. Dan McKenna and "Buck" Miller are expected to prove very much to the tiny Indians.

FRENCH AND JAPANESE BONDS RALLY BRISKLY

Domestic Issues Also Move Up in Strong Market; Rails in Demand.

SUGAR LOANS BUOYANT

New York, Nov. 19 (By the Associated Press).—Brisk rallies in French and Japanese obligations to the year's highest prices were noted today as the buoyancy in trading interest in today's strong bond market. The Morgan & Co. are expected to handle the offering, which will provide funds for reconstruction purposes.

Coincident with heavy buying of Japanese bonds, it was learned that $200,000 loan for the city of Yokohama would be brought into the market next week. Morgan & Co. are expected to handle the offering, which will provide funds for reconstruction purposes.

The establishment of new high records by most of the French government municipal and railroad loans was a natural result of the spectacular jump of nearly 20 points in the French franc to the highest level since last spring, less than a third of a cent from the 1926 peak of 390 cents. The return of franc to parity in anticipation of early currency stabilization was credited with stimulating the demand for both the bonds and the exchange. Scattered profit taking developed late in the day but closing prices were only fractionally below the day's best figures.

Expectations that the foreclosure sale of the St. Paul railway to reorganize interests next week would pave the way for the road's early emergence from receivership caused spirited bidding for the road's bonds, most of which advanced 1 to 2 points to the highest prices in nearly two years. The demand for the bonds embraced French, Chicago & Northwestern, Allegheny & Western, "Big Four," Union Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio issues.

Sugar bonds responded to the upturn in the market for this product resulting from the restriction of the Cuban crop, with prices advancing more than a point. Local traction bonds were strengthened by the decision of city authorities to formulate a definite policy on bus franchises at an early date.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Nov. 19 (By A. P.).—Wheat futures advanced a fair extent later, but rallied to a fair extent later. Better weather in Argentina, reports of export demand for shipments from North America and signs of a new crop in the Argentine, all responsible for the advance. The market for wheat was unsettled, 2 to 3¢ up, oats at 4¢ and corn unchanged to advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 2 to 3¢.

Downward swings in the price of wheat began almost at the outset of trading. A brief decline in the firmness was ascribed to the fact that the buying order book was not as deep as it had been, but the market proved insufficient to absorb the outflow of wheat production in Argentina and Argentina with stocks on hand pointed to net only adequate provision for international trade this season, but with proper handling, Canadian flour will be up to standard.

Corn and wheat derived their strength from winter wheat crop belt and smallness of corn receipts together with improved shipping demand for corn.

Provisions were responsive to an upturn in the value of hogs.
